

A NEW COMPLAINT

There is a cheerful Irishwoman whose husband is a confirmed hypochondriac.

"Good morning, Mrs. Clancy," said a friend, as they met at market. "An' how's the family?"

"They's all doin' well," said Mrs. Clancy, "with the exception of me ould man. Hes been enjoyin' poor health now for some time, but this mornin' he complained of feelin' better."—Top-Notch.

NO LONGER SPRY

The old gentleman's wife was getting into an automobile and he neglected to assist her.

"You are not so gallant, John, as when I was a gal," she exclaimed in a gentle rebuke.

"No," was his ready response, "and you are not so buoyant as when I was a boy."—

HE'LL GET DOWN

The Inexperienced — He says he can hardly restrain himself from falling down and worshipping her.

The Rejected—Tell him not to get nervous. She'll throw him down soon enough.—Puck.

PERFECTLY SAFE

Thug (rushing into office) — Sir, where can I hide? The police are coming!

Clerk—Get into the card index case. I defy any one to find anything in there.—Judge.

ETERNAL FEMINE

First Girl—Belle always looks under the bed to see if there is a man there.

Second Girl—Yes, but she always glances in the mirror first.

FOOLISH QUERY

"Does your dog love you, little boy?"

"Well, I guess he loves me, mister. He knows I'd lick him if he didn't."—Film Fun.

THE "FIRST ROBIN"

SHAKING HIM GENTLY

"I understand your wife is doing her own cooking."

"You are mistaken."

"But Jinx told me she was."

"Oh, that was just for a little while. Jinx was making us a visit and I guess she thought he had stayed long enough."—Houston Post.
